Over Fifty Years of Dance Theatre of Harlem
The fifty-four-year history of Dance Theatre of Harlem (DTH) is a landscape of peaks and valleys inhabited by a race of dreamers, achievers and, yes, history makers. DTH co-founder Arthur Mitchell was all the above as well as premier danseur, choreographer and teacher. We used to call him “our fearless leader” because he marched forward never thinking that what he sought to do would have been impossible for anyone else. His passing in 2018 left us bereft but determined that the institution he and Karel Shook incorporated on February 11, 1969, will endure and thrive.

Arthur Mitchell believed in the power of art to change lives and open minds. The DTH company, school and arts education program, Dancing Through Barriers (DTB), became the manifestation of that idea. While the school and DTB served the Harlem community, with the company, Arthur Mitchell was able to take his vision across the globe. The DTH company, a mix of African Americans, Hispanics, Asians and Caucasians, was a vivid demonstration of the premise that the art form of classical ballet belongs to us all.

The social impact of Dance Theatre of Harlem’s national and international touring for more than 50 years is often noted, but as significant is the depth and breadth of the company’s artistic prowess. With a repertoire that ranges from Mitchell’s own neoclassical works (he learned his craft at George Balanchine’s knee, after all), historic Ballet Russes, classics such as Scheherazade and Les Noces, to great American narrative works such as Billy The Kid, Fall River Legend and the groundbreaking productions of Creole Giselle and Firebird that linger in the collective consciousness, throughout its history, Dance Theatre of Harlem has expanded the notion of what ballet can be.

Arthur Mitchell (Co-Founder)
Mitchell is known around the world for creating and sustaining Dance Theatre of Harlem, the internationally acclaimed ballet company he co-founded with Karel Shook in 1969. Following a brilliant career as a principal artist with the New York City Ballet, Mitchell dedicated his life to changing perceptions and advancing the art form of ballet through the first permanently established African American and racially diverse ballet company.

Born in New York City in 1934, Mitchell began his dance training at New York City’s High School of the Performing Arts, where he won the coveted annual dance award and subsequently a full scholarship. to the School of American Ballet. In 1955, he became the first male African American to become a permanent member of a major ballet company when he joined New York City Ballet. He rose quickly to the rank of principal dancer during his fifteen-year career with New York City Ballet and electrified audiences with his performances in a broad spectrum of roles. Upon learning of the death of Reverend Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. and with financial assistance from Alva B. Gimbel, the Ford Foundation and his own savings, Mitchell founded Dance Theatre of Harlem with his mentor and ballet instructor, Karel Shook.

With an illustrious career that spanned over fifty years, Mitchell was the recipient of the Kennedy Center Honors, a National Medal of the Arts, a MacArthur Foundation Fellowship, the New York Living Landmark Award, the Handel Medallion, the NAACP Image Award and more than a dozen honorary degrees.

Karel Shook (Co-Founder)
Shook played a key role as a teacher and mentor to African American dance artists in New York in the 1950s. In addition to cofounding Dance Theatre of Harlem with Arthur Mitchell in 1969, he also was a ballet master, choreographer and author. Born in 1920, Shook was a native of Renton, Washington. Encouraged to study ballet, at age 13 he was a protégé of Nellie Cornish and received a scholarship to the Cornish School of Allied Arts in Seattle. While his performance career was brief, he appeared on Broadway and danced with the Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo and New York City Ballet. Shook's performance career led to teaching and choreographing, mainly in Europe but also in New York. In the early 50s, he opened Studio Arts, one of the few dance studios in the city where African Americans could study ballet. Among his students were Carmen de Lavallade, Pearl Primus, Geoffrey Holder, Louis Johnson, Alvin Alley and Arthur Mitchell, who first came to him at age 17. Shook left New York in 1959 to become the ballet master of the Dutch National Ballet, where he was when his former student, Arthur Mitchell, asked him to return to New York to help create Dance Theatre of Harlem. Shook was an advocate of the universality of classical ballet. His book, Elements of Classical Ballet, explores the development of classical ballet in such countries across the globe as China, Turkey, Iran, Japan, Cuba and Mexico. In 1980, he was awarded the United States Presidential Award for Excellence and Dedication in Education.

Robert Garland (Resident Choreographer)
Garland was a member of the Dance Theatre of Harlem Company achieving the rank of principal dancer. After creating a work for the DTH school ensemble, Arthur Mitchell invited him to create a work for the Dance Theatre of Harlem company and appointed him the organization’s first Resident Choreographer. He is the Director of the DTH school. In addition to choreographing several ballets for DTH, Garland has also created works for New York City Ballet, Britain’s Royal Ballet, Oakland Ballet and many others. His commercial work has included music videos, commercials and short films, including the children’s television show Sesame Street, a Nike commercial featuring New York Yankee Derek Jeter, the NAACP Image Awards, a short film for designer Donna Karan, and the "Charmin Cha-Cha" for Proctor and Gamble. Garland holds a Bachelor of Fine Arts degree from The Juilliard School in New York City.

A native of Cali, Colombia, Peñuela began dancing at the age of 12 with Incolballet, a ballet-centered secondary school.
